Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fukuchi (US 5396356).

Fukuchi discloses a liquid crystal display device comprising (see Figures 1a, 1b) : a pair of substrates; a liquid crystal layer sandwiched between the paired substrates; a seal pattern 19 formed peripherally to the active area, and between the first and second substrates; an electrode pattern (13d, 14d, 15d) adjacent the seal pattern and outside the active area.

Both Fukuchi and Applicant's claimed invention (Figure 5) show the sealing material contacting the first and second substrates. It is noted that "directly contact" is not recited in any claim.

Fukuchi shows the electrode pattern formed between the seal pattern and the substrate.

Fukuchi shows an overcoating layer formed over the electrode pattern 13d.

The limitation not explicitly disclosed by Fukuchi is TFTs (active matrix LCD device). However, the use of TFTs in a liquid crystal display device is known for advantages such as cross-talk reduction, wherein one of the common TFT structures for an active matrix LCD device comprises data lines and gate lines arranged perpendicular to each other, TFT formed at an intersection of the lines, an insulator formed over the TFT, a pixel electrode formed over the insulator. Therefore, it would have been at least obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to employ TFTs (active matrix LCD device) for advantages such as cross-talk reduction.

Per claims 5-6, Fukuchi discloses that the electrodes on the substrate and the electrode patterns are transparent electrodes. Further, it would have been at least obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to form the electrodes on the substrate and the electrodes of the same material (also at the same time) for advantages such as cost-reduction, processing steps-reduction.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 08-13-02 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant's only arguments are as follows : Fukuchi fails to disclose the sealing material contacting the first and second substrates. Fukuchi discloses the sealing material contacting only one of the first and second substrates.

Examiner's responses to Applicant's only arguments are as follows : Both Fukuchi and Applicant's claimed invention (Figure 5) show the sealing material contacting the first and second substrates. It is noted that "directly contact" is not recited in any claim.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
